

Inside the news—briefly

Colby says CIA needs other agencies 'cover'

Washington

William Colby, former director of the Central Intelligence Agency, said Wednesday American intelligence officers abroad are being put in danger because they cannot use other government agencies as a "cover."

He urged that a new charter governing U.S. intelligence operations should include a requirement that other agencies help intelligence organizations in their work.

ful
made SSCI